

scavenger hunt @HMNS

So you find yourself at one of my favorite places: The Houston Museum of Natural Science in Houston. Here's a fun scavenger hunt to do with friends, family, a date, or even solo. There are no wrong answers. Seriously. Just have fun, learn something new, and find a lovely life. One housekeeping thing: this scavenger hunt was designed within the Permanent Exhibits only. Check ticket prices here. (Remember to bring a student ID if you have one.)

READY? SET. GO!

Find the pendulum swing. How many blocks are knocked down?

Knock on wood. Name three states with petrified trunks.

Find the kickboxing dinosaur. What time period would these bones punch?

Find a mummy. Name the mummy.

What state was the saber-toothed cat found?

Head to the cabinet of curiosities. Find something you'd take with you on vacation. What drawer was it in?

You're a gem. Now find a stone that would be your kryptonite. What color is it?

Time for some zen. Find the biggest amethyst you can find. Where is it from?

Together in Paris. Find the portrait of Grand Duchess Anastasia. What year is it?

Find an element on the periodic table that starts with your name. What exists in the world with it?
